Introduction

In this used to activity, students play a guessing game where they talk about recent changes in their lives using I used to..., I didn't use to... and I'm getting used to...

Procedure

Divide the class into two groups (A and B). Give each student a corresponding worksheet.

Explain that the worksheet shows recent changes in the student's life. The students' task is to write sentences about what they used to do, didn't use to do, and what they are getting used to, regarding each situation.

As an example, write the following situation on the board:

You have started working out everyday.

I used to...

I didn't use to...

I'm getting used to...

Ask the students how they would complete each sentence and write their ideas on the board.

Examples:

I used to eat junk food and watch TV all day.

I didn't use to feel energetic.

I'm getting used to eating healthily.

Explain that the students are going to complete the sentences on their worksheet in a similar way, without giving away the situation in their sentences.

Working with the people in their group, the students complete the sentences in a way that is appropriate for each situation.

When the students have finished writing, have them pair up with someone from the other group.

The students then take it in turns to read out the three sentences for each situation.

Their partner has three chances to guess the situation. For each correct guess, students score a point. The student with the most points at the end of the game wins.
